Having a Goal of Owning Your Own Building or Investing In A Piece of Commercial Real Estate Is Not Unrealistic In Today's World

Each of us are owners of a business, or we work for someone and are decision makers in those businesses, striving to grow that business month to month, year to year. Someday it will be like that apple or orange, ripe and ready to be picked.

So each of us continue to want to take advantage of our success, and as we succeed, we take a look at our physical plant, our business footprint, and hopefully someday, will own our own building or piece of land. But who takes care of making sure you know what the best opportunities are out there? It's great to know who Pat Beckner of Beckner and Associates is.

Pat has been doing real estate for many years, and has translated his experience and training skills in the education field to a well respected commercial real estate guru. He wants to teach people all about their choices, about what fits them best.

He stated simply his job is the sale and leasing of commercial real estate. He does retail space, office, warehouse, even land acquisitions. And if he can't help you with the area you need, he knows someone in the industry that can assist you.

Speaking of RE trends, Pat said that apartment buildings as investments are very strong, and the land for apartments is booming too. Industrial is holding its own, but office space has taken a new turn. Now companies are looking for more open large spaces in contrast to having the space broken up with cubicles and moveable walls. Thus giving their employees for access to sharing information between different departments.

The best loan for small businesses today is an SBA loan, mostly for small to medium sized businesses.

Pat has assisted many members, past and present, with purchasing a building, or leasing space around the city. He knows his stuff, and has a finger on the pulse of Johnson County. So when you outgrow your business environment, be ready to talk to the expert in commercial RE deals – Pat B.
