QUOTE OF THE WEEK:-

Men want the same thing from their underwear that they want from women: a little bit of support, and a little bit of freedom.

-Jerry Seinfeld

Answer to Last Week’s Trivia Question:

The person who played Deep Throat in the movie “All the President’s Men” was Hal Holbrook.

The Metamorphosis Of A Butterfly

Ever remember as a kid watching that caterpillar spin its own cocoon, and hibernate. Then you watched it change into this beautiful butterfly. Think about all our members, and you can tell how Sandy Kessinger of Bank Midwest has become that butterfly of business.

Sandy will be the first to admit her life has been a roller coaster ride. She is an acclaimed military brat, and started her family at a very young age. A few bumps in the road did not stop her; even getting fired from her first job did not redirect her faith in herself.

It took a lot of courage to know she had to find a job to support her family, and moving back to Kansas City lead to many good things. Her job, her family, and the love of her life.

Sandy has grown so much accepting whatever challenges that have been set before her. From teller to customer service and auto and commercial loans to branch managers, she has learned so much about business, about personal relationships, about people’s behaviors.

She has really learned how making one decision in a job empowers you to make another down the road. After several years serving the bank’s clients in KCK and Grandview, her superiors had better plans for Sandy. She is now a Small Business Specialist.

Lots has happened economically to Bank Midwest in her tenure, especially during the housing debacle. BMW was heavily invested in properties on the east and west coasts that went south. But some restructuring has left them a stronger, healthier company, still privately owned.

And Sandy could not go without thanking Prospectors for progressing her business savvy, and her ability to talk to business owners, and clients, something she never ever imagined she could or would do.

She concluded by stating that it is all about forming relationships with those that surround you. It is building trust – trust your banker, trust your painter, trust your lawyer. That is how business gets done today!

And Thank You Sandy for guiding the ship each week, and for making the Prospectors THE club to be a part of.
