QUOTE OF THE WEEK:-

Bad personal habits spill over into bad business habits. You can't be a loser in one part of your life and expect it not to affect the rest of what you do. It will.

—Dan Waldschmidt

Answer to Last Week's Trivia Question:

The sport standardized under the Queensbury rules is boxing.

The Roots Of A Tree Still Stand Strong For Years and Years

One often hears us talk about what a true gentleman is. Have you ever known or met one? Well, you just may have if you attended breakfast last week. Smart, active, young thinking, well-rounded. Those are words that truly describe a long-time member of Prospectors, and its newest Member Emeritus, Ed Holland.

Ed came to us last week to catch us up on what is happening in his life, and to praise the Club for its continued success. You see, Ed was a big part of that, joining Prospectors in its infancy, and was inspirational during its growth years.

Ed began his career in food services by solving problems his first day on the job. He told each of us to stay active in your business daily. Never take your company for granted, and recognize those that help make you look good every day. A kind word goes a long way.

And Ed has always believed that you become a success being a well-rounded person. Take part in what interests you the most, your passion. That way, when you get up to go to work, you are really not working because you love what you do, and it is NOT work! Ed says he never "worked" a day in his life.

Ed is a big part of Treat America, a company that operates food services for major corporations around the country. They have acquired other companies that complement their strategies, and now have 131 operations in 30 states.

It is a testament to Ed's long list of business and personal accomplishments to the kind of person Ed represents. We are so glad to have him back as part of Prospectors, and hope that we will have more frequent visits than just once a year.

Thank You Ed for all you have and will continue to do for the Prospector family.
