Answer to Last Week's Trivia Question:

Simon and Garfunkel were the ones who asked the question “Where have you gone Joe DiMaggio?”

There Are Many Ways To Make A Living.
Knowing One Man's Junk Is Another Man's Treasure Still Holds True Today.

The longer you live life to the fullest, the more stuff you accumulate. And the more stuff you accumulate, the bigger place you need to keep it. George Carlin said it best – “We buy a house so we have a place to keep all our shit. When we get too much shit, we buy a bigger house. Or today, you even rent a storage space to keep your extra shit in.”

But there comes a time when you realize that – OK, it's time to simplify – to get rid of all that junk that we have gathered. Broken appliances, outdated electronics, clothes, furniture, home decorating accessories, little red squeezable pick-up trucks – the list is endless. Stuff you haven't touched in years. Stuff you never will look at again.

So what do you do? Who do you call? One answer, a well kept secret that is ready to become more known by all – Rich and Bill Sirna of Sirna Brothers Hauling and Junk Removal.

That's right. Rich told us how they are a full service junk removal company. If you don't want it, they'll take it.

They do both residential and commercial clean-outs. When you are moving, downsizing, or just getting rid of excess stuff. They are your go-to guys. Some just want to get rid of it all together.

What makes them different from other hauling companies is that they try and recycle as much as possible before taking it to the landfill. They make homes more showable if they are in the market to sell, and have done lots of demolition jobs and hauling that debris away.

They price their bids by using volume of stuff and time to complete the job as their variables. They have cleared storage units, and if businesses have excess inventory, outdated product, they are good candidates for their services as well.

It stands to reason that if you have stuff you haven't even looked at in 6 months to a year, it is time to give Rich and Bill a call and let them do their thing, making your life easier and more clutter free. Thanks Rich for your service to Prospectors and here's to your continued success!
