

How Much Is That Doggie In The Window?

Making a Career of Caring for People's Beloved Pets

How many of you have loving pets that you live with and are taking care of? More than we could ever imagine. And even if you don't have one, chances are in your lifetime you did love and care for one or more of them.

As hard as we all try, there are times when our furry friends just don't feel well, and that makes us concerned and worried. So what to do when that happens?

Well, it's great to know about one of our newest members, Brad Twigg, DVM at the Grandview Animal Clinic and the Animal Rehabilitative Center at Grandview.

Brad has had a love and appreciation of God's creatures since a very young man. You see, his mother worked at this animal clinic and he visited it many times as a youngster. In high school they asked him the inevitable question – What do you wanna be when you grow up? It always seemed his answer was a veterinarian.

So when Brad entered college, he pursued a biology major and followed his Science Degree with entry into Veterinarian School at the University of Missouri. He then worked for an established animal hospital in KC and got indoctrinated into care and surgeries quicker than he ever imagined. Long hours and pressure to produce were not exactly prime conditions he expected to be dealing with.

It just so happened that he had heard rumors of an opportunity at the 60 year old animal hospital his mother worked at. He talked and the partner was thrilled to have Brad come on board.

It wasn't much later when Brad was traveling with his own dog that the unimaginable occurred. He was in a horrific car accident. Not only was he injured and shaken up, but his trusted companion got banged around and ended up with injuries of his own. He knew his dog needed rehab, but he knew very little about it, but he also knew he could obtain certification, so that's what he did.

250 hours of training and he now knew all there was to know in order to help his pet, and he also can now open up a whole new avenue of care to dogs, cats, and other animals that need specific therapies. What was most exciting was being able to see a client's happy face when their pets could walk around, run, & climb steps without pain. A true miracle that takes place in the hands and equipment at the Animal Rehab Center.

Besides your normal health care for your pets (shots, upset stomachs, bone breaks, dental care, etc.) and surgeries that they perform for animals that have more serious health issues, there are lots that they provide through the Animal Rehab Center.

These include laser therapy (2-3 times / week), electric stimulation, acupuncture (the animal is so relaxed it even falls asleep sometimes), manual therapy kind of like massage, therapeutic exercise. This exercise sometimes involves underwater therapy (they use this a lot). Then you have those animals that are overweight or obese, and that entails working on losing weight (80% of all pets are overweight). And then there is post-operative care, both from nerve repairs, or from orthopedic surgeries.

They have a trainer on staff. They are the ones who get the home care plan together. They will try and structure this plan to mimic the exercises that are much like what the dogs or cats do at home. Takes a lot of questions and observations to nail this one on the head.

If you have a pet, you now have a go-to resource to find out the newest and best practices for your beloved pet and a great place to take them with the hospital and Rehab Center as close as Grandview (just down the highway). Welcome Brad to a great group, and we all hope to give just a little love to our animal friends now or in the future.
